MATERIALS AND METHODS

3. Concluding remarks

3.1. Quantitative, qualitative and mixed methods of research

3.2. Research design

3.3. Study area

3.4. Population for the study

3.5. Units of analysis

3.6. Sampling

3.7. Primary data collection

- 3.7.1. Preparation of interview schedule
- 3.7.2. Pre-testing
- 3.7.3. Training of enumerators
- 3.7.4. Conducting survey
- 3.7.5. Key Informant’s Interviews
- 3.7.6. Coding, editing and data entry

3.8. Secondary data collection

3.9. Measurement of variables

- 3.9.1. Response variable
- 3.9.1.1. Measurement of response variable (dependent variable)
- 3.9.1.2. Construction of Women’s Summative Empowerment Index (SEI): Dependent Variables
- 3.9.2. Measurement of Independent Variables
- 3.9.2.1. Household headship
- 3.9.2.2. Type of family
- 3.9.2.3. Number of respondent’s brothers
- 3.9.2.4. Education
- 3.9.2.5. Respondent’s age
- 3.9.2.6. Conjugal age
- 3.9.2.7. Observing veil (purdah)
- 3.9.2.8. Paid job involvement
- 3.9.2.9. Housing condition
- 3.9.2.10. Household possessions
- 3.9.2.11. Households income
- 3.9.2.12. Local level facilities
- 3.9.2.13. Political participation
- 3.9.2.14. Awareness about women’s rights
- 3.9.2.15. Social networking
- 3.9.2.16. Husband’s cooperation
- 3.9.2.17. Dowry and property received by the respondents from their parents
- 3.9.2.18. Exposure to mass media
- 3.9.2.19. Religious tendency
- 3.9.2.20. Respondent’s willingness for change

3.10. Techniques of Analysis

- 3.10.1. Scaling
- 3.10.2. Indexation
- 3.10.3. Reliability coefficient
3.10.4. Descriptive analysis (univariate analysis) ........................................... 61
3.10.5. Bivariate Analysis ................................................................................. 62
  3.10.5.1. Chi-square distribution ................................................................. 62
  3.10.5.2. Pool t-test ...................................................................................... 63
  3.10.5.3. Analysis of variance technique ..................................................... 64
  3.10.5.4. Gamma coefficient for measuring association ............................. 65
  3.10.5.5. Somer’s d test for association ....................................................... 65
  3.10.5.6. Pearson’s coefficient of correlation .............................................. 66
3.10.6. Multivariate Analysis .......................................................................... 67
  3.10.6.1. Coefficient of Determination ....................................................... 67
  3.10.6.2. Regression analysis ....................................................................... 67
  3.10.6.3. Stepwise regression ...................................................................... 69
3.11. Limitations of the study ........................................................................ 70
3.12. Concluding remarks .............................................................................. 71

4. QUANTITATIVE ANALYSIS ..................................................................... 72
4.1 Descriptive analysis .................................................................................. 72
  4.1.1. Family type ....................................................................................... 72
  4.1.2. Family headships ............................................................................ 73
  4.1.3. Relation with husband ..................................................................... 73
  4.1.4. Living with husband ....................................................................... 74
  4.1.5. Choice of marriage partner .............................................................. 74
  4.1.6. Age of respondent .......................................................................... 75
  4.1.7. Conjugal age ................................................................................... 76
  4.1.8. Couples’ age difference ................................................................. 76
  4.1.9. Respondent’s age at marriage ......................................................... 77
  4.1.10. Total number of children ............................................................... 78
  4.1.11. Education of respondents and their husbands ............................... 78
  4.1.12. Respondent’s and her husband’s job/occupation .......................... 79
  4.1.13. Property owned by the respondents and their husbands ............. 80
  4.1.14. Characteristics of respondent’s residence ..................................... 82
  4.1.15. Household possessions and household facilities ......................... 83
  4.1.16. Household income ....................................................................... 85
  4.1.17. Total household expenditure ......................................................... 85
  4.1.18. Respondents’ exposure to mass media ......................................... 86
  4.1.19. Perception of respondents about local level facilities ............... 89
  4.1.20. Political participation of respondents ............................................ 92
  4.1.21. Awareness about the women rights .............................................. 93
  4.1.22. Husband’s cooperation ................................................................. 95
  4.1.23. Social networking ......................................................................... 96
  4.1.24. Dowry and property received by the respondents from their parents .................................................................................. 98
  4.1.25. Religious tendency of respondents ............................................. 99
  4.1.26. Observing veil by respondents ..................................................... 100
  4.1.27. Paid job involvement ..................................................................... 101
  4.1.28. Work load of respondents (no. of hours) .................................... 102
  4.1.29. Respondents’ willingness for change .......................................... 103
  4.1.30. Respondents’ control over economic resources ........................... 105
4.1.31. Respondents’ participation in decision making at household level
4.1.32. Respondents’ mobility
4.1.33. Respondents’ participation in family discussions

4.2. Bivariate Analysis
4.2.1. Construction of index variables
4.2.2. Explanation of bivariate tables
4.2.3. Association between type of family and women’s empowerment
4.2.4. Association between family headship and women’s empowerment
4.2.5. Association between respondent’s age and women’s empowerment
4.2.6. Association between conjugal age and women’s empowerment
4.2.7. Association between respondent’s education and women’s empowerment
4.2.8. Association between local level facilities and women’s empowerment
4.2.9. Association between urban/rural area and women’s empowerment
4.2.10. Association between security at local level and women’s empowerment
4.2.11. Association between housing condition and women’s empowerment
4.2.12. Association between number of persons per rooms and women’s empowerment
4.2.13. Association between household possessions and women’s empowerment
4.2.14. Association between household income and women’s empowerment
4.2.15. Association between involvement in paid job and women’s empowerment
4.2.16. Association between observing veil and women’s empowerment
4.2.17. Association between dowry and property received by the respondents from their parents and women’s empowerment
4.2.18. Association between religious tendency and women’s empowerment
4.2.19. Association between exposure to mass media and women’s empowerment
4.2.20. Association between willingness for change and women’s empowerment
4.2.21. Association between political participation and women’s empowerment
4.2.22. Association between awareness about the right and women’s empowerment
4.2.23. Association between social networking and women’s empowerment

4.2.24. Association between husband’s cooperation and women’s empowerment

4.2.25. Association between number of respondent’s brothers and women’s empowerment

4.2.26. Association between age at marriage and women’s empowerment

4.2.27. Association between respondent’s relation with husbands and women’s empowerment

4.2.28. Association between work load of respondents and women’s empowerment

4.3. Multivariate analysis

4.3.1. Relevance of multiple linear regression

4.3.2. Explanation of fitted regression model

4.3.3. Variable-wise description of the model

4.3.4. Theoretical implication of the model

4.4. Concluding remarks

5. QUALITATIVE ANALYSIS

5.1. Introduction

5.2. Results and discussions: based on key informant interviews

5.2.1. The problems faced by a common woman in Punjab, Pakistan

5.2.2. Divorce and women’s financial security

5.2.3. Women’s deprivation from their inherited property

5.2.4. Seeking justice in case of domestic violence

5.2.6. Comments on Government’s policies

5.2.7. Suggestions for uplifting the status of women

5.3. Concluding remarks

6. SUMMARY

6.1. Summary

6.1.1. Type of family

6.1.2. Family headship

6.1.3. Respondent’s conjugal age or length of marital life

6.1.4. Education

6.1.5. Local level facilities

6.1.6. Number of respondent’s brothers

6.1.7. Paid job involvement

6.1.8. Observing veil (purdah)

6.1.9. Dowry and property received by the respondents from their parents

6.1.10. Social networking

6.1.11. Political participation

6.1.12. Awareness about the rights

6.1.13. Husband’s cooperation
